Introduction

This fact sheet aims to provide you with information to help you care for your child once at home.

Most children appear quite alert and active when they are discharged from hospital. However your child may complain of feeling dizzy or tired. Your child may feel dizzy and unco-ordinated for the next couple of days.

For the next 24 hours

- you should encourage your child to rest
- you should make sure your child activities are supervised by a responsible adult
- do not let your child ride a bike
- do not let your child take part in outdoor activities
- do not give your child any fizzy drinks
- do not give your child hard to digest food such as chips, burgers.

Your child may complain of having a sore throat, hoarseness or muscle ache following an anaesthetic. You can give your child Paracetamol. Do not exceed the dosage recommended for your child’s age.

All advice regarding medicines will be given to you when your child is discharged.

What to do if your child starts to vomit

If your child vomits on the way home or when you get home, do not be alarmed. Do not give your child anything to eat or drink for one hour. After that, you can start giving your child a small amount of water or juice. Then gradually start to increase the amount of fluid you give to your child. Once your child can keep fluids down you can begin to give them a light diet.

If the vomiting continues, please contact your GP out of hours telephone number of your nearest Accident & Emergency Department.

What to do when your child goes home

- Your child’s urine may be blood stained for the first 24 hours. This is quite normal, but if it continues you should consult your G.P. or contact the hospital on the numbers given overleaf.
- Encourage your child to drink plenty of fluids - but not fizzy drinks
• A warm bath sometimes relieves any discomfort and may help your child to pass urine more comfortably.

• Your child may be reluctant to pass urine, if they not passed urine for 12 hours, telephone the hospital for advice.
